

◆ The Most Recent Common Ancestor to whom you share your DNA cousins matches with can come from any of the other many branches of your DNA Genealogy growing tree . So careful check them all out, but remember there could also be NPE in their trees. If a DNA match to you just can't BE place in your growing tree map, keep that in mind they are a DNA cousin but just not clear where they fit in yet. In time maybe they will with further matches or by paper trail found.

Happy Orienteering one day you will find all your own "Cornerstone." ◆

Kerri Small

◆ The gender neutral word for Nephews & Nieces is Nibbling."

◆ Your Parents siblings are your Uncle & Aunt their children are your 1st cousins

◆ Children who shared the same Mother but different Fathers are called Uterine Siblings.

Children who share the same Father but different Mothers are called Agnate Siblings.

CM

cm numbers shown here are an approximate range. A full chart range will be on the site soon.

◆ <https://www.australiandnahunb.org.au/cornerstone>

